TERM INSURANCE

One for the family

A pure protection product needs careful analysis before commitment. Here are four factors to check out

1. Institutional factors

State-backed units while policyholders increased in a range of evolving service options can lock in entities with multinational partnerships. Policyholders can opt for a policy on the spectrum which offers security and stability.

2. Claim settlement ratio

Claim settlement ratio is the ratio of number of death claims settled against the total number of claims filed. Claim settlement ratio for all insurers start from 94 per cent and do not look bad per se. But at an individual level, the probability of rejection increases from 6.6 per cent to 9.7 per cent across insurers implying a 3.1 per cent higher chance of a rejection by one insurer over another.

With IRDAI tightening claim processing standards during Covid period, the average ratio improved from 2018-19 to 2020-21 period.

3. Factors influencing pricing

Term insurance is somewhat underfunded sector and hence price competition is evident amongst insurers. Resources (investor to the insurers) have increased premiums in the last six months post-Covid. Some insurers have passed on the higher prices while some are still retaining it to increase penetration (see table).

But from customer perspective, pricing is also dependent on individual risk factors and scope of coverage offered.

4. Add-ons offered

Add-ons are purchasable options (for extra cost) that increase the functionality of term insurance. On occurrence of critical illness during the policy term, certain insurers provide ₹5 lakh for treatment. This add-on costs around ₹2,000 per annum and double up as health insurance but in limited scope. Policyholders must be aware of the list of critical illnesses covered (ranging around 30). A terminal illness is when the policyholder is incapacitated by the illness but is eligible for a payout. This is addressed by a full or a part payment of the complete sum assured provided as a free add-on by ICICI Prudential, Max Life, PNB MetLife, Canara HSBC.

Accidental death is covered by the sum assured, but hospitalisation expenses could end into a large part of payout received later on. Add-ons addressing this situation provide for an accidental death sum assured of ₹10 lakh which is over and above the basic sum assured, and costs ₹500-1000 per year for the add-on. HDFC Life offers a comprehensive ₹1 crore additional accidental death benefit, which costs ₹548 per year. Hospitalisation expenses for accidental disability are covered with a cover of ₹50 lakh and the add-on costs around ₹700 per year. Jani AXA covers these risks efficiently with an annual charge of ₹50 for each accidental death (payout equal to sum assured) or accidental disability (one out of ₹1 lakh).

Securing spouse and child is also possible with add-on. Bajaj Allianz, PNB MetLife and Canara HSBC provide child support benefit amount upon death of the policyholder in addition to the basic sum assured, which is intended to cover for child's educational expenses (add-on cost of ₹500-1,000 per year). Jani Life riders offered by Bajaj Allianz, PNB MetLife and Edelweiss let one provide a cover for the spouse in the same policy. But policyholder needs to clarify whether the sum assured is paid on both lives, irrevocable, and are waivers of premium offered. In most cases, though, separate policy for the lives could be crucial to diversify payout risk.

Overall, policies with increasing cover alongside add-on for terminal illness and accidental disability seem useful. This is assuming health insurance is covering all illnesses with no add-on covering for personal accident. Family objective should be reflected in sum insured, but an extra cover may be useful.

Insurer's background

In insurance, scouting for a policy begins with the insurer. The checklist should have the wherewithal to process any claim request many years into the future, including the big payout, with minimum risk and no hassles for the policyholder/homeowner. However, any financial evaluation of the institution beyond two years, even by experts, is not easy. In such cases, historical international background and merits should be assessed.

LIC is the state-owned insurer that supports a near-sovereign backing and long-term stability. Insurers backed by public sector banks or public sector insurers such as SBI, PNB (PNB MetLife), India First (promoted by SBI and Union Bank) and Canara Bank (Canara HSBC General) business concerns on longevity to an extent.

They can draw critical skills of underwriting and risk control from their banking experience. Leading private sector players in life insurance, including HDFC, ICICI (ICICI Prudential) and Kotak Mahindra can draw on their banking experience.

Indian conglomerates offering life insurance in partnership with multinational insurers provide the security of a local anchor, and, at the same time, operating know-how of international partners. Aditya Birla with Canada's Sun Life Financial, Tata with American AXA Group, Bajaj with Germany's Allianz group, Reliance with Japan's Nippon and Dabur with Aviva, the British player, are some examples.

However, the advantages that each enjoy can't be perpetuated. A sovereign guarantee doesn't matter if the claim is rejected on other grounds. Superior underwriting skills cannot guarantee financial solvency and completeness are subject to risks. The key is that the policyholder should be comfortable with the entity to which he agrees to pay a premium to, for 25-30 years, especially since pricing seems unemulated to institutional backing. Policyholder looking for only a (one) coverage guarantee can opt for

Like mutual funds, midcap funds offered by Unit Linked Insurance Plans (ULIPs) also rallied over the last years since the COVID pandemic broke out. Most of the ULIP midcap funds delivered triple digits absolute returns during the period and rewarded their policyholders handsomely. Currently, there are 20 midcap funds offered by life insurers. While most of the MF midcap funds' counterparts outpaced their respective midcap indices in the last two years, many ULIP midcap funds underperformed their benchmarks. Buy and hold strategy was cited as one of the reasons for their underperformance. Also, many ULIP midcap funds adopted defensive strategy to overcome the pandemic disruptions. Here are the top 10 ULIP midcap funds that delivered an absolute return of up to 208 percent since their March 2020 lows. Source: Life insurers websites and ACEMF.
